NOW-NOW-NOW

We ask the indulgence of school patrons in both Milano and Cameron districts to consider the merits of consolidation before a fixed position is taken.

During the past week, we have seen information published noting about a $1,000,000 budget for the CISD, about a $200,000 plus budget for the MISD, which, if combined, plus other incentives from Texas Education Agency sources could mean an extraordinarily advantageous district for students of both. We urge you to ask local officials what values would accrue to such a combination. We again invite Milanoans to consider what a district with that combined income could do for students.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Cameron Country Club, it is reported, is having some pointless vandalism which is accruing some several dollars worth of loss to the local club.

Cameron is fortunate to have one of the two clubs in the county and one of the oldest in Central Texas. Small country clubs are convenient and difficult to maintain because of the same high overhead all types of operations, like schools, must face.

Any loss on such things as greens markers, to name one, is a loss to be made up. Club officials note they will apply full measure to control this sort of thing, as do public officials in Cameron and Milam County for any kind of theft.

PT. ARANSAS BOUND - Cameron Boys Scouts Allan Mortimer, Randy Massengale, Scott Mitchan, Gary Mitchan, Scout Master Felix Matula and Eddie Fuller loaded up Wednesday night for a 4 a.m. departure to hurricane stricken Port Aransas where the Scouts joined Red Cross workers in clean-up operations. Also making the trip were Mike Mortimer, Mike Posival, Steve Meyer, David Fincher, and Mark Darilek. The Cameron helpers camped in tents at a Port Aransas church grounds for the 3-day clean-up operation. They returned to Cameron Monday. The trip was sponsored by local businessmen.

Consolidation Election Set For Sept.12

Absentee voting starts Monday (today) in the election to decide the proposed consolidation of the Milano and Cameron school districts.

All legally qualified voters who live in the Milano and Cameron school districts are eligible to vote. The election has been called for September 12.

Absentee votes can be cast at the office of Supt. R. L. Porter in Milano, or Supt. D. R. Dodson in Cameron from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. September 7 is absentee voting deadline.

Voting places for the September 12 election will be at Yoe High gymnasium in Cameron, with Felix Matula as presiding judge and Mrs. Sam Houston alternate.

At Milano, voters may cast ballots at the Milano High School where L. E. Love will serve as presiding judge with Mrs. Homer Haddox alternate.

Voters will mark with an "X" or check mark, either "for" or "against" consolidation.

The election was called by Milam County Commissioners Court following filing of two petitions, one from each district, requesting the consolidation election.

Farmers Ask Graze Grant

Alva Sanders, ASCS officer manager, said county farmers were indicating an interest in using acreage diverted under the feed-grain program for grazing cattle.

Sanders said in past years when drouth had been severe special permission was granted to graze on the diverted acres in Milam County.

He said the ASCS was keeping a list of farmers who request the grazing permission and would forward the information. He said if grazing permission was granted it would probably be on an area need basis.

Anticipated enrollment is 320 students, Porter said, an increase of about 15 over last years. This continues a small increase in enrollment experienced during the past few years, he said.

Country Writer Tells Dog Story

A common fallacy that has existed for years among unwilling dog owners is "Let's take him (or her) out to the country, people out there always have room for dogs, and he will be happier with lots of room to run." Mrs. Leroy Guillote, The Herald's correspondent for the Sharp - Tracy - Friendship area, writes about the country people's side of the issue:

Special Notice, to anyone who seems to think that all they have to do is to take their dog and throw it out on some country road, and ANYONE will be glad to have it and give it a good home.

It is time that fantasy is destroyed and the truth be told and accepted by people with this wild idea. Country people have dogs, usually more than one, up to ten or twelve, for the ones who love to coon hunt. Certainly, no more dogs are needed.

The truth? One farm was blessed with 10 stray dogs. When the 10th arrived, they were all shot, perhaps a much more humane thing than leading them up and dumping them elsewhere, for goodness knows what kind of fate.

One farm home now has three strays, one a very expectant mother, to make the count even more. They will all be shot.

And how about the person who dumped their white and black dog out at the cross roads? Did they ever drive back by, and see the dog sleeping, or staying so close to the road, afraid to leave, waiting for THEM to come back for him?

Ones driving by everyday soon felt pity for the dog, anger for ones who would do such a thing and afraid the dog would get run over, staying where he was dumped. He survived by being fed from these people for weeks and weeks.

This isn't just a summer happening, by ones leaving on trips or etc., it is a year round problem, and one that needs to be solved. So, people, this is to let you know, the country isn't a happy haven for the dog you get, and decided you don't want.

The William Norths ...
Army To Party Cookies

By Alice R. DuBois

In 1946 William North, an Army mess sergeant for 20 years, moved to Cameron with his wife, the former Nadine Bragg. He visualized a leisurely, lackadaisical existence as a retiree in a small Central Texas community.

Nothing could have been more paradoxical in his way of thinking than what took place. Soon he was caught up in the activities of this small city, was invited to join the Masonic Lodge and soon afterward elected Steward of Local Lodge #170.

This was the start of a second career. As Steward he was responsible for the food service at the Lodge and he began making cookies, sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres for the various Lodge social functions. Soon members and acquaintances began asking him to cater for other occasions and he was embarked on a career as caterer with a specialty of decorative cookies.

If there seems to be an army of difference between cooking in 150 gallon containers and making party cookies Mr. North can prove there isn't. A similar kind of regimentation applies as he and wife Nadine close ranks to prepare and deliver the many orders of cookies made right in their own kitchen.

It isn't unusual for them to make as many as a thousand cookies in one day, he said.

When asked if he had any special recipes of his own he said "No, I try any recipes appearing in magazines, cook books or on box tops that appeal to me. If a recipe turns out good I use it a lot; if not I throw it away. Sometimes I change the recipes a little to suit my own taste."

He explained no extra stoves or other special equipment is needed in his work. He uses a regular size oven and many large cookie sheets and can turn out several dozen cookies in just a few minutes. He said most of the cookies take only twelve minutes to bake.

"I make the dough in small amounts, he said, because it's easier to work with. I don't need any refrigeration because all cookies are freshly made right at home in our own kitchen."

Decorated cookies are a different story. It takes several days to make some of his decorated cookies. For each color that's used on a cookie he explained, there's an extra day of preparation. "I make the frosting out of powdered sugar and egg whites and store the different colors in separate jars. I put the basic color of the cookie with a pastry tube. Each successive day I add another color until the cookie is finished. It takes four days to make a cookie with four different colors. Each color has to set for a period of time to keep the colors from running together."

There's rarely a local party table for adults or children that escapes the artistic enhancement of the North's cookies. Often at Christmas or other special holiday seasons his cookies

Times, Schools Are 'Changed .....

Milano school officials furnished information, published elsewhere, on the new school year starting August 24. They also furnished information about small schools which is best described as hopeful, but "wishful thinking."

By statistical calculation from Texas Education Agency, there are something over 100,000 students in schools of Milano's size or under in Texas, according to Milano officials.

This compares to a Texas' enrollment figure of 2.7 million public school students. Considering the comparison of something more than 100,000 to 2.7 millions, it is to Milano Independent School District's credit to sustain itself as long as it has. But. . .

The small school district of this size is not the backbone of Texas education and it does not appear the real basis of education in Texas is the small school.

The small school or school district once was the backbone, but that era ended in the 1950's, along with the demise of rural population.

If Milanoans would look about, they would find 50 or more employees at Alcoa's Rockdale Works and 5 employees at Industrial Generating. These are a main reason the community retains a school this long. They are the bread winners of child-rearing families.

And it would serve the forthcoming students of Milano Schools to ask their parents what it will require to "make it" from now on. And if they don't say "technical education" in most cases, we indeed would be surprised.

If Milano is teaching vocational agriculture, like so many other schools in Texas this day, it is not technical education. It is handy for working around the house, the farm or the hobby. But how many students in Milano, indeed how many anywhere, work on the farm anymore?

The question due to be asked about this time is: "Where do we go from here?"

The answer in schools is obviously "we don't go down!" We may stand still awhile, which is no answer to parents of youngsters needing particularized training for their sons and daughters.

It is a loss, in final analysis, when the additional subject matter available in larger systems is unavailable to these 100,000 or more students in Texas. Not the community's loss, the student's loss. And that is a distinction sometimes relegated to lesser consideration.

The truth is consolidation and desegregation are the major changes in Texas' and most other schools in this nation. Texas is urban, whether Milam County is or not. Milano community has more jobs in Alcoa and IGC than in the local schools.

Milam County is urbanizing, just like the rest of Central Texas. To cite Alcoa figures once again, employees at this Rockdale facility reside in 70 communities in multi-county areas.

Anyway you cut it, that is industrialization. This includes Milano, and communities around and between Milano and Cameron, which gained 29 such Alcoa jobs during 1969 while attracting three industries in the past 18 months.

Sometimes, there is something unpleasant about the real picture. Your Herald has time and again looked at the Milam area as of the year it is, rather than what was. We don't make this picture. It exists.

The best we can advise is the fact that things are not "only achangin' "; they are changed. And school consolidation is part of a scene already changed, whether Milano, Rosebud, Lott, Buckholts or any other small system caught in this shift of economy and population.

We might have it otherwise, but we, of Milano and Cameron and Milam County, cannot.

Think about it.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Lipstick: A Job Hazard

Near the end of her lunch hour, a stenographer sat down in the company lounge to put on lipstick. But she lost her balance and fell, suffering a back injury. Could she collect workmen's compensation?

The company insisted that the girl was not entitled to compensation because she was not "on the job" when hurt. Nevertheless, a court upheld her claim.

"Applying cosmetics was not an abandonment of her employment," said the judge. "It added to her comfort and self-esteem, and thereby permitted her to more efficiently concentrate upon her duties."

Generally speaking, workmen's compensation covers injuries that occur not only during the work itself but also during other activities closely related to the job. For example, it applies while an employee is getting a drink of water or going to the lavatory.

In fact, workmen's compensation may apply even before the day's work has begun. Take this case:

A hotel waitress, arriving early, headed first for the powder room to change into working shoes. On the way, she slipped and broke her arm. Even though she had not yet been on the job, she was held entitled to workmen's compensation—because changing here shoes was so closely related to her work.

However, the law usually will not approve a compensation claim if the victim's activity was in violation of company rules and regulations.

In another case, a bakery worker was injured while trying to force open a tight window. He claimed later that the room had been stuffy, and that he needed some fresh air to help him work better.

However, there happened to be a company rule against anyone opening windows without the permission of the foreman. Accordingly, a court ruled that the claimant was not entitled to compensation. The court said he could not logically be considered "on the job" while doing something that his employer had specifically forbidden.

September Draft Call Is 704 Men

AUSTIN

The September draft call for Texas is 704, and no man will be selected and ordered for induction with a random sequence number higher than 195.

It appears that the ceiling will go no higher than 195 for the remainder of 1970, Colonel Charles M. Duncan, deputy state Selective Service director, said Monday.

Colonel Duncan explained that an influx of new manpower, mostly formerly deferred students, has helped to keep the ceiling on sequence numbers at 195.

The September quota is up from 560 in August, which is also being filled with men having random sequence numbers no higher than 195.

The state quota for pre-induction physical and mental examinations in September is 7,171, up from 1,490 in August.

Men sent for these examinations will be limited to those with random sequence numbers 1 through 215 from the drawing in December 1969 and men born in 1951, numbers 1 through 100, from the July 1970 drawing.

Colonel Duncan said that approximately 6,100 men of the 1951 age group will be examined along with 1,071 older men.

Deferred or exempt men, such as teachers, college students, and vocational or trade school students with random sequence numbers 1 through 215 may be forwarded for these examinations if they are likely to lose their deferred or exempt status during the next five months, Colonel Duncan said.

CAMERON'S PARADE OF SPORTS

BENCH REST SHOOTING - Probably one of the most exacting sports around is bench rest shooting. The bench rest shooters are interested only in extreme accuracy and fire only at paper targets. This sport is sanctioned by the National Bench Rest Shooting Association. Only about 1,000 shooters in the nation fire in bench rest competition. Mr. Dalton Harbers, band director at Yoe High School, is one of these. Pictured is Harbers and his OPEN CLASS UNRESTRICTED HEAVY BENCH RIFLE. This rifle, full equipped and ready to fire, weighs in at 119 pounds. It is a 222 1/2 cal. The barrel is 1.45 inches at the muzzle. The sight is a 25 power Lyman scope. The barrel is made of cold rolled stainless steel and was made by Ed Shilen of Irving, Texas. On an ideal shooting day it is possible to put 10 bullets in a space the size of a thumb tack at 100 yards. Harbers holds the club record at 200 yards at Grand Prairie. The record has been standing for two years. Bench rest shooters load their own ammo and most of them load it right at the range. The purpose of bench rest shooting -- strictly experimental. Bench rest shooting, to the firearms industry serves the same purpose as the Indianapolis Speedway does to the automobile industry.

BOOKS for your CHILDREN

Science fiction has been revolutionized between our parents' childhood days and our children's time. The "science" has become more scientific and less wild invention; the "fiction" is more scientifically constructed and less purplish.

Children, most of whom demand a good degree of believability even in a fantasy, are more prone to read science fiction today than did yesteryear's youngsters when the science fiction tales were in the amazing category.

If the hobbies or other activities of your youngsters do not induce them to pick up books, try snaring them with some good science fiction. Bring back a selection from your library and keep them out in the open. Just as Buck Rogers intrigued the comic strip generation, today's busy youngsters will find it difficult to ignore the Heinleins and the Suttons. Here are a few suggested starters:

Podkayne of Mars by Robert A. Heinlein. An amusing space "whodunit" which has Podkayne and her brilliant brother embroiled in an interplanetary political plot.

The Programmed Man by Jean and Jeff Sutton. A well-constructed and fast-moving plot with a double surprise ending.

Beyond Apollo by Jeff Sutton. A story of the not-too-distant future, when a team of astronauts are delivering a permanent station to the moon. A fascinating story which should appeal to both science fiction fans and to serious readers interested in the space science of today.

The Space Ark by A. M. Lightner. The same crew of wildlife rangers of The Planet Poachers now find themselves doing battle with natural phenomena. The conflict evolves around helping to relocate the prize animals of the planet Shikai when that planet is doomed by its own malfunctioning sun.

Welcome to Mars by James Blish. After discovering the secret of anti-gravity and building a space ship disguised as a tree house, 17-year-old Dolph Haertel finds himself stranded on Mars because a hard landing has damaged his power tube.

Orphans of the Sky by Robert A. Heinlein. Story of a space ship so huge it has more stories than a skyscraper of today. It is peopled by Earthlings who have been in space for several generations enroute to a star many light years distant from earth.

The Beyond by Jean and Jeff Sutton. The planet Engo becomes a prison for the exiled citizens of the universe, and as has happened with penal colonies of this old world, the people of Engo emerge as the forerunners of a new age. A suspenseful story with a highly interesting theme.

The Planet Poachers by A. M. Lightner. The author's deft use of natural science and imagination makes an exciting tale. A fabulous creature with a golden horn is found on a distant world. Scores of adventurers are eager to kill off all the newly found animals for private gain and are ready to even liquidate the wildlife space rangers, and here the fun and excitement begin.

Social Security Direcrtor Raps Misleading Ads

Some private insurance companies have been sending misleading advertisements to Medicare beneficiaries in the Central Texas area, according to Jack Calvert, Temple social security district manager, in an effort to sell them health insurance to supplement their Medicare protection.

Calvert said that the promotional literature distributed by these companies has been deliverately designed to give the reader the impression that the company is in some way connected with the Social Security Administration, or that it has access to the Federal agency's records.

One company used a window envelope that was almost identical to the envelopes social security uses to send out benefit checks, Calvert remarked. He went on to say that only careful reading of the fine print in the advertisement revealed the statement that the company was "not an agency of the State or Federal government."

Calvert stressed that the Social Security Administration does not endorse any privately-sponsored insurance plan designed to "supplement" Medicare benefits. He also emphasized that private insurance companies do not have access to social security records, which are confidential by law.

Most private insurance programs supplementing Medicare offer valuable additional protection and advertise honestly in their sales literature. "However," Calvert said, "a few companies have engaged in practices which clearly are intended to mislead Medicare beneficiaries."

Persons who are confused by material they get in the mail offering additional Medicare protection should get in touch with their nearest social security office, or their State Insurance Commission for further information, Calvert concluded.

ARMY

are so beautifully decorated the guests have remarked "They're too pretty to eat." It isn't unusual for them to be taken home as a treat for children or to be included in a Christmas stocking.

The Norths recall many pleasant experiences they had together during his army career. "It's so hard to remember just everything that did happen and I wish now that I'd written it all down in a diary."

Once he said he was running the officers mess at an R.O.T.C. Cavalry camp in Monterey, California. "My wife and I lived on the post and acted as chaperones for the visiting children of a Major there.

It was during this time that a movie "Sergeant Murphy" was being filmed there. The movie was about a horse named Sergeant Murphy. Ronald Reagan, now Gov. of California, was the star. The actors and technicians on the set were invited to dinner one day in the officers mess creating quite a bit of excitement.

Another time Sergeant North recalled he and his wife lived in San Francisco in the home of the company commander, Major Charles Stalsburg, a bachelor. "Major Stalsburg loved to entertain," he said, "and it was my job to prepare hors d'oeuvres and delicacies for his entertaining. He was likely to bring guests to his apartment any time and it was not uncommon for me to be summoned from my bed and have to prepare food at any hour of the night. Once Major Stalsburg gave a lavish party for the daughter of the President of Panama. Helen Hayes was among the guests that night. She dedicated a song to me and my wife for the lovely food we had prepared."

Still reminiscing he remembered the time he catered a cocktail party in San Francisco for General Malin Craig -- commander of the 9th corps area. "President Hoover was a guest that night and I remembered one thing about the 31st president of the U.S. He was a teetotaler."

North well passed the proverbial 3 score and ten years spends little time recalling his dream of the leisurely small community life. Still spry and active, he said "I'm looking forward to many more years of making dough--both kinds."

February 28, 1854 marked the date of the organization of the Republican Party.

Support Grows For Insurance Rate Proposal

Support is growing for including investment income of insurance companies directly in the formula used in setting auto insurance rates, State Rep. Dan Kubiak reports this week.

The chairman of the Texas Insurance Board became the second member of the three - man board to voice support for the controversial proposal, Kubiak said in his August 14 newsletter.

Board Chairman is Ned Price. Last week, Kubiak said, Charles D. Mathews, the newest member of the board, "rocked the opening round of hearings by the Senate Interim Insurance Study Committee by announcing he was supporting the proposal."

If investment income is used, Kubiak added, the entire rate-making formula must be reworked and will probably prevent implementing new rates this year.

"This would reduce burgeoning insurance premiums and should have the effect of at least repressing indicated rate increases," he said.

Gov. Preston Smith has taken a firm stand on campus unrest, Rep. Kubiak said.

In a statement to the Representative's office, Gov. Smith said in essence that college students should be told their school's policies and comply or get out. The Governor said that students simply do not have the experience or maturity to run our colleges and universities, Kubiak noted.

"A university, it seems to me," he added, "is an entirely appropriate place to examine society, to debate its frailities and to propose remedies -- just as it is an appropriate place to study a chosen profession."

Paper Power

Washington, D.C., is not only the country's foremost manufacturer and consumer of red tape. With its myriad of government agencies, the city also ranks first as a producer of waste paper.

This unsurprising fact is revealed by an outfit called Capitol Reclamation Corp., which ought to know. It buys approximately 1,825 tons of canceled government checks from the General Services Administration every year and was recently awarded a contract from the Government Printing Office to buy 800 tons of scrap paper a month.

Your last income tax refund check, if you got one, may even now be enjoying a second life as writing or printing paper, tissue, a carton or part of a building, roofing or insulation product, among other things.

More than 11 million tons of waste paper are being reclaimed for industrial use in the United States today, says Capitol—11 million tons not burned to add to air pollution, not buried, not left to blow around in the street.

The figure sounds impressive but it is only 20 per cent of the total raw material supplied to paper and paperboard mills. That percentage is expected to increase sharply in the years ahead, however, to meet the soaring demand for paper and paper products.

Another fact to warm a conservationist's heart: For each ton of waste paper reused, 17 trees do not have to be cut down. This means that some 190 million trees—nearly one for every American—are being saved annually through paper reclamation.

Catalog To Index State Water Data

Eight State agencies involved in collecting information related to water in Texas have combined efforts to issue the first volume of a catalog that will provide an index to the data being amassed.

Representatives from these agencies form the Water Oriented Data Programs Section of the Interagency Natural Resources Council, which is part of the Planning Agency Council for Texas.

The agencies include the State Department of Health, the Highway Department, the Parks and Wildlife Department, the Railroad Commission, the State Soil and Water Conservation Board, the Water Development Board, the Water Quality Board, and the Water Rights Commission.

The Division of Planning Coordination of the Governor's Office worked with these agencies to assure overall coordination with other related State functions.

One of the long range goals of the Section is to establish a hydrologic data bank to which all Texas agencies collecting or processing water data would contribute. The development of a statewide Catalog of Water Oriented Data is the first step toward this goal.

Investigation suggested that the catalog needed to pinpoint the specific kinds of water and related data presently available and being collected, where they can be obtained, and in what form. A pilot report undertaken on one county, Brazoria, proved the general idea feasible and set the format for the series to follow.

After publication of the pilot study, "Volume 1 -- The Canadian River Basin" of the Catalog of Water Oriented Data was prepared. This first of 24 volumes to be issued, one for each river and coastal basin and one for data for the bays and estuaries, has now been released by the Section.

The four state forests in Texas are used for forestry demonstration and research purposes.

Debate To Pit Athiest, Theologian

Two programs from KLRN-TV's "Face to Face" series, both featuring debates between atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and leading theologians, are scheduled to air nationally and regionally in September.

Mrs. O'Hair debates progressive theologian Dr. Edward Bauman on NET Journal on Monday, September 7, at 8 p.m. The hour-long program will be carried locally on Channel 9 and on almost 200 public television stations across the nation.

On Tuesday, September 22, at 8 p.m., the debate between Mrs. O'Hair and fundamentalist minister Carl McIntire will be broadcast over the Southern Educational Network. This regional network serves public TV Stations throughout the South.

The debates were taped last February by KLRN before an overflow and highly partisan crowd in Austin for the "Face to Face" series.

Topic for each debate was "Is Atheism the Religion of the Future," but the two programs differed considerably in both tone and content.

Mrs. O'Hair first won national attention when her lawsuit in Maryland led to the U.S. Supreme Court's controversial ban on compulsion prayer in public schools. Since moving to Austin, she has continued to pursue atheistic causes and, last winter, was co-founder of Poor Richard's Universal Life Church, a non-profit organization meant to test the traditional tax-exempt status of churches in America.

Dr. Bauman, who is pastor of the Foundry Methodist Church in Washington, D.C., represents the liberal faction among churchmen today. He is host and lecturer for "Luke's Gospel in the Modern World" and several other Bible telecourses that have been televised on Channel 9.

Dr. McIntire, who heads the fundamentalist International Council of Christian Churches, hosts the radio program, "The Twentieth Century Reformation, Hour," which is heard on more than 600 stations throughout the world. He is considered one of the most outspoken proponents of ultra - conservatism and anti-Communism in the ministry today.

Poage Takes Dim View Of Women's Rights

Cong. W. R. Poage apparently takes a dim view of the proposed constitutional amendment on women's rights, saying it "will wipe out all of the special protection which our State laws have given to women."

"All my life I have supported the right of women to vote," he said in his August 14 newsletter. "I believe in our Texas community property laws, our homestead laws, and our exemption of household goods from ordinary execution.

"Likewise, as a member of our Texas Legislature, I supported special protection for working women. I cannot now see why I should support a proposed change in our Federal Constitution which will wipe out all of the special protection which our State laws have given to women."

Poage said he was one of only 15 who voted "no" to the proposal. It was accepted by the House last week. If it is adopted by three-fourths of the States, it will "repeal the protection we give women who work in laundries, etc.," he said.

Poage said he voted to override the President's vetoes of two appropriation bills -- the Education Bill and the HUD-Independent Offices Bill.

"I have not agreed with many of the programs financed by these bills, but all of these programs were authorized by Congress with the President's approval," he said. "I doubt the propriety of destroying programs, like Aid for Impacted Schools, Expansion of Veterans' Facilities, and Urban Renewal Programs."

The House is taking a recess until September 9, and Poage said he will be in Waco for about three weeks.

Action Grants Approved For Lawmen, Juveniles

Governor Preston Smith today approved two grants to the Central Texas Council of Governments, Belton, for a peace officer training program and for services to juvenile courts and juvenile probation departments in the six-county Central Texas region.

The grants were made on recommendation of the Texas Criminal Justice Council, which administers funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U. S. Department of Justice.

It was one of 30 action grants recommended by the Council at its regular monthly meeting. The grants totaled $1,533,575.

Judge Joe Frazier Brown, executive director of the Council, said a grant of $7,740 represents a revision and addition to a recent grant for $14,260 for a peace officer training program.

This grant will be used to pay 60 percent of the salary of a training program coordinator, whose position is made necessary by unanticipated demands for training and by other factors.

A grant of $36,640 will be used to provide diagnostice and treatment services to the juvenile courts and juvenile probation departments of Bell, Coryell, Hamilton, Lampasas, Milam and Mills counties, which comprise the Central Texas Council of Governments.

This program is expected to result in better decisions by the court. It also is designed to increase significantly the rehabilitative resources available to the court and cut down on detention while hearings are pending.

Implementation of the project will be through the Bell County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center at Belton.

The Criminal Justice Council, responsible for statewide planning, administers such grants to units of state and local governments to assist them in carrying out projects for improving the criminal justice system.

NOW-NOW-NOW

We ask the indulgence of school patrons in both Milano and Cameron districts to consider the merits of consolidation before a fixed position is taken.

During the past week, we have seen information published noting about a $1,000,000 budget for the CISD, about a $200,000 plus budget for the MISD, which, if combined, plus other incentives from Texas Education Agency sources could mean an extraordinarily advantage - ous district for students of both. We urge you to ask local officials what values would accrue to such a combination. We again invite Milanoans to consider what a district with that combined income could do for students.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Cameron Country Club, it is reported, is having some pointless vandalism which is accruing some several dollars worth of loss to the local club.

Cameron is fortunate to have one of the two clubs in the county and one of the oldest in Central Texas. Small country clubs are convenient and difficult to maintain because of the same high overhead all types of operations, like schools, must face.

Any loss on such things as greens markers, to name one, is a loss to be made up. Club officials note they will apply full measure to control this sort of thing, as do public officials in Cameron and Milam County for any kind of theft.

PT. ARANSAS BOUND - Cameron Boys Scouts Allan Mortimer, Randy Massengale, Scott Mitchan, Gary Mitchan, Scout Master Felix Matula and Eddie Fuller loaded up Wednesday night for a 4 a.m. departure to hurricane stricken Port Aransas where the Scouts joined Red Cross workers in clean-up operations. Also making the trip were Mike Mortimer, Mike Postval, Steve Meyer, David Fincher, and Mark Darilek. The Cameron helpers camped in tents at a Port Aransas church grounds for the 3-day clean-up operation. They returned to Cameron Monday. The trip was sponsored by local businessmen.

FFA Honors Monroe Fuchs

Monroe H. Fuchs, vice president of Ideal Poultry Breeding Farms, Inc., was awarded an Honorary Lone Star Farmer degree at the annual Area III FFA awards banquet Thursday night in Brenham.

Awards were presented to a number of Cameron and Milam County FFA members during the banquet.

Shelby G. Smith, vo-ag teacher at Milano High School, was also named Honorary Lone Star Farmer.

The honorary degree is the highest award given in the Texas FFA to supporters of the organization and agriculture. Fuchs was cited for his assistance with FFA poultry projects, locally and nationally.

Cameron Yoe Chapter awardees are:

Richard Vaculin, Larry Reinders, and Ben Vogelsang - Lone Star Farmer Degree;

Bobby Yates - recognition as Area III Star American Farmer;

Richard Vaculin - District I Star State Farmer degree;

Jimmy Vansa - Farm Machinery Co-op Training award;

Melvin Hollas - Area III Agricultural Mechanics award;

Martin Mueck - Area III Soil and Water Management award.

Other awardees were Norman Haisler Jr., of Buckholts; James Paceley and Gary A. Shaw of Milano; and Patrick Blinka of Rockdale, all receiving Area III Lone Star Farmer degrees.

Special guests attending the banquet from Cameron included Mrs. Monroe Fuchs, Mrs. Hugo Hollas, Mrs. Joe Mueck, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Vaculin, Coleman Duncum, E. J. Provasek, and Jack Chubb, Yoe High principal. Yoe chapter advisors C. Titsworth and Bobby J. Carter also accompanied the group.

Consolidation Election Set For Sept.12

Absentee voting starts Monday (today) in the election to decide the proposed consolidation of the Milano and Cameron school districts.

All legally qualified voters who live in the Milano and Cameron school districts are eligible to vote. The election has been called for September 12.

Absentee votes can be cast at the office of Supt. R. L. Porter in Milano, or Supt. D. R. Dodson in Cameron from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. September 7 is absentee voting deadline.

Voting places for the September 12 election will be at Yoe High gymnasium in Cameron, with Felix Matula as presiding judge and Mrs. Sam Houston alternate.

At Milano, voters may cast ballots at the Milano High School where L. E. Love will serve as presiding judge with Mrs. Homer Haddox alternate.

Voters will mark with an "X" or check mark, either "for" or "against" consolidation.

The election was called by Milam County Commissioners Court following filing of two petitions, one from each district, requesting the consolidation election.

Farmers Ask Graze Grant

Alva Sanders, ASCS officer manager, said county farmers were indicating an interest in using acreage diverted under the feed-grain program for grazing cattle.

Sanders said in past years when drouth had been severe special permission was granted to graze on the diverted acres in Milam County.

He said the ASCS was keeping a list of farmers who request the grazing permission and would forward the information. He said if grazing permission was granted it would probably be on an area need basis.

Anticipated enrollment is 320 students, Porter said, an increase of about 15 over last years. This continues a small increase in enrollment experienced during the past few years, he said.

Country Writer Tells Dog Story

A common fallacy that has existed for years among unwilling dog owners is "Let's take him (or her) out to the country, people out there always have room for dogs, and he will be happier with lots of room to run." Mrs. Leroy Guillote, The Herald's correspondent for the Sharp - Tracy - Friendship area, writes about the country people's side of the issue:

Special Notice, to anyone who seems to think that all they have to do is to take their dog and throw it out on some country road, and ANYONE will be glad to have it and give it a good home.

It is time that fantasy is destroyed and the truth be told and accepted by people with this wild idea. Country people have dogs, usually more than one, up to ten or twelve, for the ones who love to coon hunt. Certainly, no more dogs are needed.

The truth? One farm was blessed with 10 stray dogs. When the 10th arrived, they were all shot, perhaps a much more humane thing than leading them up and dumping them elsewhere, for goodness knows what kind of fate.

One farm home now has three strays, one a very expectant mother, to make the count even more. They will all be shot.

And how about the person who dumped their white and black dog out at the cross roads? Did they ever drive back by, and see the dog sleeping, or staying so close to the road, afraid to leave, waiting for THEM to come back for him?

Ones driving by everyday soon felt pity for the dog, anger for ones who would do such a thing and afraid the dog would get run over, staying where he was dumped. He survived by being fed from these people for weeks and weeks.

This isn't just a summer happening, by ones leaving on trips or etc., it is a year round problem, and one that needs to be solved. So, people, this is to let you know, the country isn't a happy haven for the dog you get, and decided you don't want.

The William Norths ...
Army To Party Cookies

By Alice R. DuBois

In 1946 William North, an Army mess sergeant for 20 years, moved to Cameron with his wife, the former Nadine Bragg. He visualized a leisurely, lackadaisical existence as a retiree in a small Central Texas community.

Nothing could have been more paradoxical in his way of thinking than what took place. Soon he was caught up in the activities of this small city, was invited to join the Masonic Lodge and soon afterward elected Steward of Local Lodge #170.

This was the start of a second career. As Steward he was responsible for the food service at the Lodge and he began making cookies, sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres for the various Lodge social functions. Soon members and acquaintances began asking him to cater for other occasions and he was embarked on a career as caterer with a specialty of decorative cookies.

If there seems to be an army of difference between cooking in 150 gallon containers and making party cookies Mr. North can prove there isn't. A similar kind of regimentation applies as he and wife Nadine close ranks to prepare and deliver the many orders of cookies made right in their own kitchen.

It isn't unusual for them to make as many as a thousand cookies in one day, he said.

When asked if he had any special recipes of his own he said "No, I try any recipes appearing in magazines, cook books or on box tops that appeal to me. If a recipe turns out good I use it a lot; if not I throw it away. Sometimes I change the recipes a little to suit my own taste."

He explained no extra stoves or other special equipment is needed in his work. He uses a regular size oven and many large cookie sheets and can turn out several dozen cookies in just a few minutes. He said most of the cookies take only twelve minutes to bake.

"I make the dough in small amounts, he said, because it's easier to work with. I don't need any refrigeration because all cookies are freshly made right at home in our own kitchen."

Decorated cookies are a different story. It takes several days to make some of his decorated cookies. For each color that's used on a cookie he explained, there's an extra day of preparation. "I make the frosting out of powdered sugar and egg whites and store the different colors in separate jars. I put the basic color of the cookie with a pastry tube. Each successive day I add another color until the cookie is finished. It takes four days to make a cookie with four different colors. Each color has to set for a period of time to keep the colors from running together."

There's rarely a local party table for adults or children that escapes the artistic enhancement of the North's cookies. Often at Christmas or other special holiday seasons his cookies

Times, Schools Are 'Changed .....

Milano school officials furnished information, published elsewhere, on the new school year starting August 24. They also furnished information about small schools which is best described as hopeful, but "wishful thinking."

By statistical calculation from Texas Education Agency, there are something over 100,000 students in schools of Milano's size or under in Texas, according to Milano officials.

This compares to a Texas' enrollment figure of 2.7 million public school students. Considering the comparison of something more than 100,000 to 2.7 millions, it is to Milano Independent School District's credit to sustain itself as long as it has. But. . .

The small school district of this size is not the backbone of Texas education and it does not appear the real basis of education in Texas is the small school.

The small school or school district once was the backbone, but that era ended in the 1950's, along with the demise of rural population.

If Milanoans would look about, they would find 50 or more employees at Alcoa's Rockdale Works and 5 employees at Industrial Generating. These are a main reason the community retains a school this long. They are the bread winners of child-rearing families.

And it would serve the forthcoming students of Milano Schools to ask their parents what it will require to "make it" from now on. And if they don't say "technical education" in most cases, we indeed would be surprised.

If Milano is teaching vocational agriculture, like so many other schools in Texas this day, it is not technical education. It is handy for working around the house, the farm or the hobby. But how many students in Milano, indeed how many anywhere, work on the farm anymore?

The question due to be asked about this time is: "Where do we go from here?"

The answer in schools is obviously "we don't go down!" We may stand still awhile, which is no answer to parents of youngsters needing particularized training for their sons and daughters.

It is a loss, in final analysis, when the additional subject matter available in larger systems is unavailable to these 100,000 or more students in Texas. Not the community's loss, the student's loss. And that is a distinction sometimes relegated to lesser consideration.

The truth is consolidation and desegregation are the major changes in Texas' and most other schools in this nation. Texas is urban, whether Milam County is or not. Milano community has more jobs in Alcoa and IGC than in the local schools.

Milam County is urbanizing, just like the rest of Central Texas. To cite Alcoa figures once again, employees at this Rockdale facility reside in 70 communities in multi-county areas.

Anyway you cut it, that is industrialization. This includes Milano, and communities around and between Milano and Cameron, which gained 29 such Alcoa jobs during 1969 while attracting three industries in the past 18 months.

Sometimes, there is something unpleasant about the real picture. Your Herald has time and again looked at the Milam area as of the year it is, rather than what was. We don't make this picture. It exists.

The best we can advise is the fact that things are not "only achangin' "; they are changed. And school consolidation is part of a scene already changed, whether Milano, Rosebud, Lott, Buckholts or any other small system caught in this shift of economy and population.

We might have it otherwise, but we, of Milano and Cameron and Milam County, cannot.

Think about it.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Lipstick: A Job Hazard

Near the end of her lunch hour, a stenographer sat down in the company lounge to put on lipstick. But she lost her balance and fell, suffering a back injury. Could she collect workmen's compensation?

The company insisted that the girl was not entitled to compensation because she was not "on the job" when hurt. Nevertheless, a court upheld her claim.

"Applying cosmetics was not an abandonment of her employment," said the judge. "It added to her comfort and self-esteem, and thereby permitted her to more efficiently concentrate upon her duties."

Generally speaking, workmen's compensation covers injuries that occur not only during the work itself but also during other activities closely related to the job. For example, it applies while an employee is getting a drink of water or going to the lavatory.

In fact, workmen's compensation may apply even before the day's work has begun. Take this case:

A hotel waitress, arriving early, headed first for the powder room to change into working shoes. On the way, she slipped and broke her arm. Even though she had not yet been on the job, she was held entitled to workmen's compensation—because changing here shoes was so closely related to her work.

However, the law usually will not approve a compensation claim if the victim's activity was in violation of company rules and regulations.

In another case, a bakery worker was injured while trying to force open a tight window. He claimed later that the room had been stuffy, and that he needed some fresh air to help him work better.

However, there happened to be a company rule against anyone opening windows without the permission of the foreman. Accordingly, a court ruled that the claimant was not entitled to compensation. The court said he could not logically be considered "on the job" while doing something that his employer had specifically forbidden.

September Draft Call Is 704 Men

AUSTIN

The September draft call for Texas is 704, and no man will be selected and ordered for induction with a random sequence number higher than 195.

It appears that the ceiling will go no higher than 195 for the remainder of 1970, Colonel Charles M. Duncan, deputy state Selective Service director, said Monday.

Colonel Duncan explained that an influx of new manpower, mostly formerly deferred students, has helped to keep the ceiling on sequence numbers at 195.

The September quota is up from 560 in August, which is also being filled with men having random sequence numbers no higher than 195.

The state quota for pre-induction physical and mental examinations in September is 7,171, up from 1,490 in August.

Men sent for these examinations will be limited to those with random sequence numbers 1 through 215 from the drawing in December 1969 and men born in 1951, numbers 1 through 100, from the July 1970 drawing.

Colonel Duncan said that approximately 6,100 men of the 1951 age group will be examined along with 1,071 older men.

Deferred or exempt men, such as teachers, college students, and vocational or trade school students with random sequence numbers 1 through 215 may be forwarded for these examinations if they are likely to lose their deferred or exempt status during the next five months, Colonel Duncan said.

CAMERON'S PARADE OF SPORTS

BENCH REST SHOOTING - Probably one of the most exacting sports around is bench rest shooting. The bench rest shooters are interested only in extreme accuracy and fire only at paper targets. This sport is sanctioned by the National Bench Rest Shooting Association. Only about 1,000 shooters in the nation fire in bench rest competition. Mr. Dalton Harbers, band director at Yoe High School, is one of these. Pictured is Harbers and his OPEN CLASS UNRESTRICTED HEAVY BENCH RIFLE. This rifle, full equipped and ready to fire, weighs in at 119 pounds. It is a 222 1/2 cal. The barrel is 1.45 inches at the muzzle. The sight is a 25 power Lyman scope. The barrel is made of cold rolled stainless steel and was made by Ed Shilen of Irving, Texas. On an ideal shooting day it is possible to put 10 bullets in a space the size of a thumb tack at 100 yards. Harbers holds the club record at 200 yards at Grand Prairie. The record has been standing for two years. Bench rest shooters load their own ammo and most of them load it right at the range. The purpose of bench rest shooting -- strictly experimental. Bench rest shooting, to the firearms industry serves the same purpose as the Indianapolis Speedway does to the automobile industry.

BOOKS for your CHILDREN

Science fiction has been revolutionized between our parents' childhood days and our children's time. The "science" has become more scientific and less wild invention; the "fiction" is more scientifically constructed and less purplish.

Children, most of whom demand a good degree of believability even in a fantasy, are more prone to read science fiction today than did yesteryear's youngsters when the science fiction tales were in the amazing category.

If the hobbies or other activities of your youngsters do not induce them to pick up books, try snaring them with some good science fiction. Bring back a selection from your library and keep them out in the open. Just as Buck Rogers intrigued the comic strip generation, today's busy youngsters will find it difficult to ignore the Heinleins and the Suttons. Here are a few suggested starters:

Podkayne of Mars by Robert A. Heinlein. An amusing space "whodunit" which has Podkayne and her brilliant brother embroiled in an interplanetary political plot.

The Programmed Man by Jean and Jeff Sutton. A well-constructed and fast-moving plot with a double surprise ending.

Beyond Apollo by Jeff Sutton. A story of the not-too-distant future, when a team of astronauts are delivering a permanent station to the moon. A fascinating story which should appeal to both science fiction fans and to serious readers interested in the space science of today.

The Space Ark by A. M. Lightner. The same crew of wildlife rangers of The Planet Poachers now find themselves doing battle with natural phenomena. The conflict evolves around helping to relocate the prize animals of the planet Shikai when that planet is doomed by its own malfunctioning sun.

Welcome to Mars by James Blish. After discovering the secret of anti-gravity and building a space ship disguised as a tree house, 17-year-old Dolph Haertel finds himself stranded on Mars because a hard landing has damaged his power tube.

Orphans of the Sky by Robert A. Heinlein. Story of a space ship so huge it has more stories than a skyscraper of today. It is peopled by Earthlings who have been in space for several generations enroute to a star many light years distant from earth.

The Beyond by Jean and Jeff Sutton. The planet Engo becomes a prison for the exiled citizens of the universe, and as has happened with penal colonies of this old world, the people of Engo emerge as the forerunners of a new age. A suspenseful story with a highly interesting theme.

The Planet Poachers by A. M. Lightner. The author's deft use of natural science and imagination makes an exciting tale. A fabulous creature with a golden horn is found on a distant world. Scores of adventurers are eager to kill off all the newly found animals for private gain and are ready to even liquidate the wildlife space rangers, and here the fun and excitement begin.

Social Security Direcrtor Raps Misleading Ads

Some private insurance companies have been sending misleading advertisements to Medicare beneficiaries in the Central Texas area, according to Jack Calvert, Temple social security district manager, in an effort to sell them health insurance to supplement their Medicare protection.

Calvert said that the promotional literature distributed by these companies has been deliverately designed to give the reader the impression that the company is in some way connected with the Social Security Administration, or that it has access to the Federal agency's records.

One company used a window envelope that was almost identical to the envelopes social security uses to send out benefit checks, Calvert remarked. He went on to say that only careful reading of the fine print in the advertisement revealed the statement that the company was "not an agency of the State or Federal government."

Calvert stressed that the Social Security Administration does not endorse any privately-sponsored insurance plan designed to "supplement" Medicare benefits. He also emphasized that private insurance companies do not have access to social security records, which are confidential by law.

Most private insurance programs supplementing Medicare offer valuable additional protection and advertise honestly in their sales literature. "However," Calvert said, "a few companies have engaged in practices which clearly are intended to mislead Medicare beneficiaries."

Persons who are confused by material they get in the mail offering additional Medicare protection should get in touch with their nearest social security office, or their State Insurance Commission for further information, Calvert concluded.

are so beautifully decorated the guests have remarked "They're too pretty to eat." It isn't unusual for them to be taken home as a treat for children or to be included in a Christmas stocking.

The Norths recall many pleasant experiences they had together during his army career. "It's so hard to remember just everything that did happen and I wish now that I'd written it all down in a diary."

Once he said he was running the officers mess at an R.O.T.C. Cavalry camp in Monterey, California. "My wife and I lived on the post and acted as chaperones for the visiting children of a Major there.

It was during this time that a movie "Sergeant Murphy" was being filmed there. The movie was about a horse named Sergeant Murphy. Ronald Reagan, now Gov. of California, was the star. The actors and technicians on the set were invited to dinner one day in the officers mess creating quite a bit of excitement.

Another time Sergeant North recalled he and his wife lived in San Francisco in the home of the company commander, Major Charles Stalsburg, a bachelor. "Major Stalsburg loved to entertain," he said, "and it was my job to prepare hors d'oeuvres and delicacies for his entertaining. He was likely to bring guests to his apartment any time and it was not uncommon for me to be summoned from my bed and have to prepare food at any hour of the night. Once Major Stalsburg gave a lavish party for the daughter of the President of Panama. Helen Hayes was among the guests that night. She dedicated a song to me and my wife for the lovely food we had prepared."

Still reminiscing he remembered the time he catered a cocktail party in San Francisco for General Malin Craig -- commander of the 9th corps area. "President Hoover was a guest that night and I remembered one thing about the 31st president of the U.S. He was a teetotaler."

North well passed the proverbial 3 score and ten years spends little time recalling his dream of the leisurely small community life. Still spry and active, he said "I'm looking forward to many more years of making dough--both kinds."

February 28, 1854 marked the date of the organization of the Republican Party.

Support Grows For Insurance Rate Proposal

Support is growing for including investment income of insurance companies directly in the formula used in setting auto insurance rates, State Rep. Dan Kubiak reports this week.

The chairman of the Texas Insurance Board became the second member of the three - man board to voice support for the controversial proposal, Kubiak said in his August 14 newsletter.

Board Chairman is Ned Price. Last week, Kubiak said, Charles D. Mathews, the newest member of the board, "rocked the opening round of hearings by the Senate Interim Insurance Study Committee by announcing he was supporting the proposal."

If investment income is used, Kubiak added, the entire rate-making formula must be reworked and will probably prevent implementing new rates this year.

"This would reduce burgeoning insurance premiums and should have the effect of at least repressing indicated rate increases," he said.

Gov. Preston Smith has taken a firm stand on campus unrest, Rep. Kubiak said.

In a statement to the Representative's office, Gov. Smith said in essence that college students should be told their school's policies and comply or get out. The Governor said that students simply do not have the experience or maturity to run our colleges and universities, Kubiak noted.

"A university, it seems to me," he added, "is an entirely appropriate place to examine society, to debate its frailities and to propose remedies -- just as it is an appropriate place to study a chosen profession."

Paper Power

Washington, D.C., is not only the country's foremost manufacturer and consumer of red tape. With its myriad of government agencies, the city also ranks first as a producer of waste paper.

This unsurprising fact is revealed by an outfit called Capitol Reclamation Corp., which ought to know. It buys approximately 1,825 tons of canceled government checks from the General Services Administration every year and was recently awarded a contract from the Government Printing Office to buy 800 tons of scrap paper a month.

Your last income tax refund check, if you got one, may even now be enjoying a second life as writing or printing paper, tissue, a carton or part of a building, roofing or insulation product, among other things.

More than 11 million tons of waste paper are being reclaimed for industrial use in the United States today, says Capitol—11 million tons not burned to add to air pollution, not buried, not left to blow around in the street.

The figure sounds impressive but it is only 20 per cent of the total raw material supplied to paper and paperboard mills. That percentage is expected to increase sharply in the years ahead, however, to meet the soaring demand for paper and paper products.

Another fact to warm a conservationist's heart: For each ton of waste paper reused, 17 trees do not have to be cut down. This means that some 190 million trees—nearly one for every American—are being saved annually through paper reclamation.

Eight State agencies involved in collecting information related to water in Texas have combined efforts to issue the first volume of a catalog that will provide an index to the data being amassed.

Representatives from these agencies form the Water Oriented Data Programs Section of the Interagency Natural Resources Council, which is part of the Planning Agency Council for Texas.

The agencies include the State Department of Health, the Highway Department, the Parks and Wildlife Department, the Railroad Commission, the State Soil and Water Conservation Board, the Water Development Board, the Water Quality Board, and the Water Rights Commission.

The Division of Planning Coordination of the Governor's Office worked with these agencies to assure overall coordination with other related State functions.

One of the long range goals of the Section is to establish a hydrologic data bank to which all Texas agencies collecting or processing water data would contribute. The development of a statewide Catalog of Water Oriented Data is the first step toward this goal.

Investigation suggested that the catalog needed to pinpoint the specific kinds of water and related data presently available and being collected, where they can be obtained, and in what form. A pilot report undertaken on one county, Brazoria, proved the general idea feasible and set the format for the series to follow.

After publication of the pilot study, "Volume 1 -- The Canadian River Basin" of the Catalog of Water Oriented Data was prepared. This first of 24 volumes to be issued, one for each river and coastal basin and one for data for the bays and estuaries, has now been released by the Section.

The four state forests in Texas are used for forestry demonstration and research purposes.

Debate To Pit Athiest, Theologian

Two programs from KLRN-TV's "Face to Face" series, both featuring debates between atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and leading theologians, are scheduled to air nationally and regionally in September.

Mrs. O'Hair debates progressive theologian Dr. Edward Bauman on NET Journal on Monday, September 7, at 8 p.m. The hour-long program will be carried locally on Channel 9 and on almost 200 public television stations across the nation.

On Tuesday, September 22, at 8 p.m., the debate between Mrs. O'Hair and fundamentalist minister Carl McIntire will be broadcast over the Southern Educational Network. This regional network serves public TV Stations throughout the South.

The debates were taped last February by KLRN before an overflow and highly partisan crowd in Austin for the "Face to Face" series.

Topic for each debate was "Is Atheism the Religion of the Future," but the two programs differed considerably in both tone and content.

Mrs. O'Hair first won national attention when her lawsuit in Maryland led to the U.S. Supreme Court's controversial ban on compulsion prayer in public schools. Since moving to Austin, she has continued to pursue atheistic causes and, last winter, was co-founder of Poor Richard's Universal Life Church, a non-profit organization meant to test the traditional tax-exempt status of churches in America.

Dr. Bauman, who is pastor of the Foundry Methodist Church in Washington, D.C., represents the liberal faction among churchmen today. He is host and lecturer for "Luke's Gospel in the Modern World" and several other Bible telecourses that have been televised on Channel 9.

Dr. McIntire, who heads the fundamentalist International Council of Christian Churches, hosts the radio program, "The Twentieth Century Reformation, Hour," which is heard on more than 600 stations throughout the world. He is considered one of the most outspoken proponents of ultra - conservatism and anti-Communism in the ministry today.

Poage Takes Dim View Of Women's Rights

Cong. W. R. Poage apparently takes a dim view of the proposed constitutional amendment on women's rights, saying it "will wipe out all of the special protection which our State laws have given to women."

"All my life I have supported the right of women to vote," he said in his August 14 newsletter. "I believe in our Texas community property laws, our homestead laws, and our exemption of household goods from ordinary execution.

"Likewise, as a member of our Texas Legislature, I supported special protection for working women. I cannot now see why I should support a proposed change in our Federal Constitution which will wipe out all of the special protection which our State laws have given to women."

Poage said he was one of only 15 who voted "no" to the proposal. It was accepted by the House last week. If it is adopted by three-fourths of the States, it will "repeal the protection we give women who work in laundries, etc.," he said.

Poage said he voted to override the President's vetoes of two appropriation bills -- the Education Bill and the HUD-Independent Offices Bill.

"I have not agreed with many of the programs financed by these bills, but all of these programs were authorized by Congress with the President's approval," he said. "I doubt the propriety of destroying programs, like Aid for Impacted Schools, Expansion of Veterans' Facilities, and Urban Renewal Programs."

The House is taking a recess until September 9, and Poage said he will be in Waco for about three weeks.

Action Grants Approved For Lawmen, Juveniles

Governor Preston Smith today approved two grants to the Central Texas Council of Governments, Belton, for a peace officer training program and for services to juvenile courts and juvenile probation departments in the six-county Central Texas region.

The grants were made on recommendation of the Texas Criminal Justice Council, which administers funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U. S. Department of Justice.

It was one of 30 action grants recommended by the Council at its regular monthly meeting. The grants totaled $1,533,575.

Judge Joe Frazier Brown, executive director of the Council, said a grant of $7,740 represents a revision and addition to a recent grant for $14,260 for a peace officer training program.

This grant will be used to pay 60 percent of the salary of a training program coordinator, whose position is made necessary by unanticipated demands for training and by other factors.

A grant of $36,640 will be used to provide diagnostice and treatment services to the juvenile courts and juvenile probation departments of Bell, Coryell, Hamilton, Lampasas, Milam and Mills counties, which comprise the Central Texas Council of Governments.

This program is expected to result in better decisions by the court. It also is designed to increase significantly the rehabilitative resources available to the court and cut down on detention while hearings are pending.

Implementation of the project will be through the Bell County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center at Belton.

The Criminal Justice Council, responsible for statewide planning, administers such grants to units of state and local governments to assist them in carrying out projects for improving the criminal justice system.
